

25th Wedding

Wedding, 1985

Last weekend we celebrated a major milestone — our Silver Wedding anniversary. I suppose like everyone who reaches this point, we wondered where the years had gone! It seems only a couple of years ago that we got married, last year that our children were in primary school, and yesterday that they were teenagers!

It makes you wonder how Biblical characters like Methuselah experienced the passage of time. If things kept speeding up for him, the years and the children must just have whipped by! He, too, must have felt life was too short when he was celebrating his nine hundred and sixty-ninth birthday!

Anyway, Johanna and I celebrated our 25th quietly, at a comfortable farm / restaurant not far from us which has a few self-catering rooms.

25th Wedding, 2010

We thoroughly enjoyed our weekend away, and shared some special gifts with each other. Jen is in the middle of her final exams right now, so we're planning a celebration with the whole family later on.

God has been good to us during these twenty-five years, giving us two wonderful children and many wonderful partners in our ministry with Wycliffe. As we come to the end of one phase and prepare to launch out on another, we feel we are celebrating not just twenty-five years of marriage, but twenty-five years of God's faithfulness. Thank you to everyone reading this who has played a part in prayer or in giving. The journey would not have been possible without you!
